

COMMANDER EATON SCORES PENSION VETO

RADICAL LEADER SAYS LA FOLLETTE TO GET SUPPORT

RUTHENBERG, SOVIET SUPPORTER, TELLS OF PARTY PLANS. BOB THEIR IDEAL While Classed as "Capitalistic" He Will Get Communist Backing.

St. Paul-Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin will be given another opportunity to run for the presidency on the Farmer-Labor-Progressive ticket. The radicalism of the communists who are assembled here for conference has led to bitter feuds but the extreme radicalism in the Farmer-Labor movement are willing to abide by the strategy of their more conservative comrades and present the platform of this convention to the Wisconsin senator for his endorsement.

Patriotism Runs High at Opening G. A. R. Reception

GEORGE KALVELAGE
Patriotism ran high and hearts were filled with a genuine love and respect for the heroes of '61-65 at the opening reception of the 68th annual encampment of the Wisconsin G. A. R. in the beautiful high school auditorium Monday night. The affair, the most thrilling that has been held in Janesville since the feverish days of the Civil war, was attended by 1,000 people, including a large representation of Civil war veterans and delegates from the seven allied organizations holding their annual conventions here in connection with the state encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The gathering was featured by the attendance of two national presidents—Mrs. Belle W. Bliss, Baraboo, national head of the Women's Relief Corps and Mrs. Francis Thayer, Chicago, national president of the Daughters of Veterans. A third dignitary in national circles who spoke was Frank A. Walsh, Milwaukee, senior vice commander of the national G. A. R.

Army Men Given Ovation
Headed by the Milwaukee life and drum corps, the Grand Army men marched from the Myers hotel headquarters to the new high school at 7:30 p. m. and were given an ovation of cheers and applause as they filed into the auditorium. The veterans formed in a group in the front part of the hall, presenting a solid semicircle of silvery heads, surrounded by several hundred delegates from other patriotic organizations and a number of Janesville citizens.

The Grand Army of the Republic was praised as "the greatest organization in the world" and the Women's Relief Corps was spoken of as "the greatest women's organization" in addresses given during the three-hour program of singing, recitation, and other patriotic exercises. The program was extended to the Boy Scouts of America after Commander Alfred S. Eaton, Superior, had paid the organization a stirring tribute.

MAHONEY TELLS HOW "SINISTER" INFLUENCES HURT

LA FOLLETTE SUDDENLY BECAME LUKEWARM TO ST. PAUL CONVENTION. A DAY OF TALKS Mahoney Says They Found They Were Encroaching on "Sacred Ground."

St. Paul, Minn.—A purpose to organize a new national political party, despite "the cruel and unwarranted attitude of Senator La Follette" was expressed at the opening today of the national farmer-labor progressive convention by William Mahoney, St. Paul, temporary chairman of the gathering.
Mr. Mahoney, in his address, the history of the farmer-labor party in Minnesota, told the delegates that the time was "auspicious to disrupt the old parties" and urged them to act "in unity so as to end the reign of the exploiters."

La Follette a Factor
This is not primarily a La Follette movement, but a working class movement with La Follette as an important factor, he said.
When this convention was first projected last November, Mr. Mahoney told the delegates, "It was never realized that such diverse obstacles would be encountered. It was thought that it was the thing that every progressive element in America wanted."

They ran around to the rear of the building and then across the creek. It was reported that the sheriff's posse was looking for them. The posse was looking for them. The posse was looking for them.

HERRIOT ASKS DISARMAMENT OF GERMANY

Paris—The declaration of Premier Herriot's cabinet, submitted to parliament today, affirms that the Ruhr will not be evacuated until the guarantee provided in the Dawes report have been set up.

Other features of the declaration include a pronouncement for the registration of normal relations with Russia.
The ministry stands for the disarmament of Germany by the allies and as soon as possible by the league of nations. It would find a solution of the problem of France's security through guarantee pacts under control of the league of nations.

THOUSANDS WILL WITNESS REVIEW ON WEDNESDAY
The most spectacular feature of the 68th annual encampment of the Wisconsin department of the Grand Army of the Republic—a sight that never again will be witnessed in Janesville—will be the great parade starting at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. The veterans of three wars, of the Civil, the Spanish-American and the World, will be in line with their associated organizations. Fifteen hundred to two thousand are expected to pour into the city in the early morning hours to witness the spectacle of the Grand Army of the Republic.

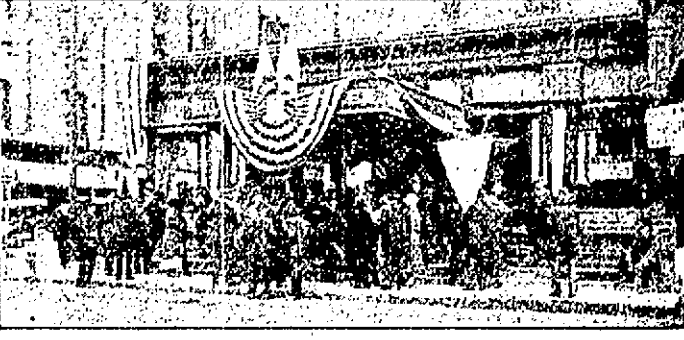

TAKE OFF YOUR HAT.
There are many persons who do not yet understand that when the flag goes by that it should come off their hats. It is a matter of respect and the flag will be carried in that parade. Won't you please take off your hat when the flag comes opposite you.

Legion in Line
Detachments from 10 American Legion posts are expected to be in line. The parade will be a grand one. The parade will be a grand one.

Iron Brigade Elects Officers Dagle Again at the Head

By LEWIS C. FRENCH
Esprit de corps was ever evident at the annual meeting of the veterans of the Iron Brigade held in the Chamber of Commerce office Tuesday morning. The survivors of this great combat unit in the War of the Rebellion still retain the pride, love, devotion and respect for their old brigade and with eyes that were dimmed with tears who were in memory of those who died in the line of duty. SAYS NATION MAY VETO COOLIDGE AT THE ELECTION

GRAND ARMY BEGINS SESSIONS THIS MORNING AT H. S. AUDITORIUM. REPORTS ARE READ Morton and Hase in Field for Commander—Sheboygan Favorite for Next City.

By DONALD C. ROLLES.
Threatening that the president might find his election this fall vetoed, because of his veto of the Bureau pension bill, Commander A. S. Eaton of Superior created something of a sensation when he read his annual report and recommendations to the afternoon session of the Wisconsin department of the G. A. R. at the high school auditorium, Tuesday.

Open Business Session.
The Wisconsin department, after a day spent entirely in renewing acquaintances and becoming reacquainted in the city, got down to its first business session at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday, leaving the annual reports of several of the officers. Previously they were at the Methodist church at the reception given them by the Woman's Relief Corps.

Believe Tourist Camp Slayer Has Fled to Canada
A 26-hour search for the slayer of a 62 year old woman, believed to be Mrs. Jean Iac Cummings of Grand Rapids, Mich., at Wisconsin, Saturday, authorities in the state were of the opinion the man had fled to Canada. A suspect, named George P. Cummings, husband of a week of the slain woman. He is younger than she, and has been married more than 20 years. Grand Rapids friends of the woman, who was killed in a house in Victoria, B. C., state a man known as George B. Cummings, not long ago operated a sport carnival there and went east June 1 to obtain financial aid in building an arena to stage a boxing bout.

OUT OF THE OLD CANTEN

A snip of a sheik, with bell-bottom trousers and vaselined hair, et al. let forth a sneer on Main and Milwaukee streets Monday afternoon.

And a silver-haired man standing nearby, angered that the veterans' life and drum corps should be thus belittled, rose up. It wasn't long before the "brat" as some called him, slunk away with his head hanging.

"Why, you—," he said, "That's music with a thrill in it. What was it that kept you going on the long marches but that music? What was it that lifted the load from your feet when we could hardly go another step but that music? Many was the time we so tired we could hardly walk, but those fife and drum corps kept us going. You can have your bands, but give us the life and the drum when we want to march."

Among the souvenirs that attracted much attention Monday was a faded blue badge worn by G. J. Schottle, adjutant of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd regiments, and a former post commander. That strip of ribbon was given to him when he was registered for the 24th annual encampment in this city in 1894.

Mr. Schottle was perhaps one of the most homesick men at the encampment. He came from Illinois. A number of years ago he went to the Illinois state encampment at Freeport, with the hope that he would see his "buddy," but when he arrived he found that his comrade had died but the week before.

Among those present is Frank Pelland of Milwaukee. He is one of the three surviving members of the W. H. Sargent, Janesville post, being second of 1887. He was a drummer in the 1st, 2nd and 3rd regiments, and served up to 30 years. He renewed friendship with G. J. Schottle, whom he had not seen for 30 years.

Twenty boys of the high school boy scout troop, under command of Daniel Voss, were about the busiest of the day. They were the visitors to the registration booths, and then took them to the places where they are to stay. They were active in carrying baggage, answering questions, and showing the veterans around the city. They are also selling souvenir pictures of the encampment. This money goes to the G. A. R. and will be used to send the veterans' drum corps to the national encampment at Boston.

Prohibition! Several of the "wet" veterans noted what they thought of it. "First thing that could happen to the country," came the reply. "You will find that a great many of our comrades are most heartily in favor of it."

"Aren't the decorations fine?" Veterans at our veterans' on the benches provided for them along the curbs and by the buildings down town, admiring the draperies of the Janesville streets and buildings. They were pleased, particularly with the many G. A. R. emblems and insignia which intermingled with flags and bunting.

The free rides on the street cars were a boon to the veterans. Many of them "hopped" the trolleys during the day and rode to the outskirts of the city and back.

One cannot help but notice the orderliness and dignified bearing of these splendid old soldiers. They were all in the line of their 50th encampment. It is indeed an example that other organizations might well emulate. They conduct themselves as gentlemen, show respect to one another, and are appreciative of what is done for them, and show it.

If all the Grand Army men carry back home with them a copy of the program, the name of Janesville will be kept green throughout Wisconsin. The program carries many illustrations, including a picture when they built the first city bridge here in 1853, another of the Hyatt house, the Janesville high school, and the Francis Willard school. Upon the back cover is a picture of the Rock Soldiers and Sailors Monument that stands in court house park.

The Janesville Gazette can well prout itself as a paper that carries the quality as a paper. It has been here for 75 years old. The building is just a block up Milwaukee street from the Hyatt house. The building has an information bureau, its door is wide open and visitors are extremely welcome. Stretched in front of the building, under low awnings, are a row of comfortable chairs where the G. A. R. may recline.

Griff J. Thomas, the genial post department commander, who comes here from Howard, Neb., where he is postmaster, has a watch that always reminds him of Janesville. It was presented to him on Feb. 17, 1882, at a meeting of members of the G. A. R. held in his only other visit to this city. Mr. Thomas was the savior of the Wisconsin G. A. R., holding it together when its foundation was threatened by unscrupulous politicians.

There will be few salesmen seeking rooms at Janesville hotels during the recent G. A. R. encampment. Roy Scott of the Myers hotel doesn't like to turn away patrons, so he sent out notices to hotels within a 100 mile radius of Wisconsin notifying them of the encampment and telling them to keep away.

Few can claim the distinction that Dr. H. A. Dixon, must recently of Madison, does. Mr. Dixon's great-grandfather fought in the Revolutionary war, his grandfather in the Mexican war, his father in the Mexican war, he in the Civil war, one of his sons was killed in the Spanish-American war, and another in the service during the World war. Mr. Dixon, who is 82, served during the war as a surgeon, and under every president from Lincoln to Hoover. He is now in the controller of currency office until his retirement. The surgeon is a conspicuous figure at the encampment. He was in one leg in an accident, but gets around mighty well with crutches.

Frank Dagle, president of the Iron Brigade, it will be recalled, was elected to know, was defeated by the narrow margin of six votes for department commander of the Iowa G. A. R. at the encampment held last week at Marshalltown, Ia. W. H. Needham, Sigourney, Ia., was elected.

Tom L. Johnson, now chaplain of Wisconsin, was elected to the position of his post and holding office on the list of higher officers of the state department, chairman of the committee on credentials, is here. He was a former member of the St. Louis Universal exposition with a responsible position on the staff of the Director of Exhibits, Friends of Mr.

Johnson are quietly fathering a movement for his election as Commander in Chief of the Grand Army at the encampment in 1925.

CORRECTION
One error has been discovered in the issue of the Encampment Edition of the Gazette in the name of the group and the name of George W. Spratt, Siochogian Falls, former commander of the state should be substituted for that of E. R. Bryant, Cambridgeport, Wis., in the Department in 1912.

Assistant Adjutant General E. R. Bryant, former resident of Janesville, is the 13th regiment, Wisconsin V. I., is the busiest man at the Encampment. His duties have been many and varied. His responsibilities have been numerous. If he has overlooked some things, the fact has not yet been discovered.

The Gazette before the close of the encampment hopes to find the "old" and "dead" of the Civil war veterans in attendance at the encampment. There are a number that might be mentioned, chief among them among the "kiddies" being A. J. Sawyer, of Whitefish, Wis., and James F. Carle, of Janesville, both of whom were 75, and C. H. Walworth, Eau Claire, 74. When it comes to years, A. J. Sawyer, of Wash., carries 92 very lightly on his shoulders and is the leading candidate for the father of the 88th encampment, G. A. R. of Wisconsin.

C. H. Walworth was but 14 years old when he succeeded, after several attempts, and was mustered in as a drummer in the 8th of the 12th United States Infantry. It took a rise to do it at that age, too, Mr. Walworth says. He learned on a comrade's shoe tops and was held up by another man standing alongside. The Eau Claire man served 100 days enlistment, being discharged Sept. 23, 1864. He was 74 Jan. 8, and is the youngest member of the Eau Claire legion.

Henry Hase, Milwaukee, a candidate for department commander, met all the trails of the United States Infantry, a regular army regiment, during the Civil war and was sent, at its close, to Montana to keep the Indians at peace with the whites. Mr. Hase, who was commander of the 1st Robert Clark post of Milwaukee before it consolidated with the E. R. Wolcott post, was mustered out Feb. 26, 1867. He is inducted into his post and accompanied by a number of boosters.

John W. Gross, Jr., commander of the Richard Ellis post of the American Legion, and general chairman for the encampment, is on duty most of the time, seeing that the G. A. R. is in the city. He is looked after. He got the benches from court house park Monday, so that the old soldiers could sit in comfort in front of the Myers.

Any man who wants to emulate these G. A. R. men, whose average age now is 72, should stick around the hotels and learn the secret. They weren't reared in the automobile age, so they go to bed anywhere from 8 o'clock on, so the hotel clerks say. Of course the encampment isn't a criterion, for there is something doing each evening, but that doesn't stop some of them from "hitting the hay" at their usual hour.

A silver cup upon which is inscribed "Champion Drummer, Wisconsin Encampment, G. A. R., Janesville," rests upon a stand in the lobby of the Myers hotel. It is a reminder of the snare drum contest, open to anyone who drummed in the Civil war, to be held at the camp through the high school auditorium Wednesday night. Judging from the drumming heard about Janesville Monday and Tuesday, competition will be keen.

In striking contrast to the gray-haired Civil war veterans is the commanding figure of Lew Wallace McComb, Stoughton, member of the Sons of Veterans, and a past division commander. Mr. McComb is the very tall young man in the blue uniform of his organization who is to be seen around the Myers hotel. He served in the World war with Headquarters company, 128th regiment of the thirty-second division.

One of the G. A. R. veterans, who is a teetotaler by the way, has a little bottle of beer, sealed, given him 48 years ago. When welcomed by one of the Janesville residents, he sat at the table Monday and cautioned about the bottle, he said he'd take just one chance and keep the bottle on his hip. The name of the man for obvious reasons is not reported; he's already too popular.

An interesting exhibit of the encampment is a drum carried in the Civil war by Andrew Corey of Company E, Third Wisconsin Infantry, who was one of three brothers, enlisting from Keokuk, Iowa, county. The drum, with a bullet hole through the center of the drum, was painted upon it in blue ink the name of the man who carried it. It was presented to the G. A. R. of the state at the last encampment by the Bedford post of the Woman's Relief Corps. One of the sticks had been broken and the drum knocked out, but it is all the more prized by the Grand Army.

One's confidence in ability to judge age gets an awful setback at this Grand Army encampment. The ages of these veterans are an enigma, so varied are the years. One of the three and four score old years that have passed since they were born. One old fellow past 80 confided the secret is not that they are old, but that they are young. They are the fountain of youth, but that they observed the laws of nature.

Scanning the faces of the men as they sit around the hotel lobbies and stand on street corners, one sees exhibited the range of human adornment of the past three-quarters of a century. There are wide variety of moustaches, long beards, chin whiskers like those that distinguish Capt. Charles H. Henry of Eau Claire, judge advocate, and burnished such as worn by Henry Hase of Milwaukee.

For those automobiles at Janesville—everyone who owns a car bays out on wheels that turn. In this category—who spent Monday making the day pleasant for the G. A. R. there is nothing but praise. The only trouble is there were not enough. After men get to the age of 70, grand old men have reached they aren't very good pedestrians and they enjoy an automobile ride. A large number had one Monday afternoon.

Between directing traffic, acting as guide for the G. A. R., and guiding for the G. A. R., Peter D. Champion of the Janesville police force, stationed at the city's busiest corner, is like the proverbial one-man paper hanger with the alive. The G. A. R. men get a mighty good impression of the Janesville police force if they figure Champion as a criterion.

Members of the first corps of the Iron Brigade may be identified by a circular piece of red cloth which they wear pinned to the front of their hats. When the first corps was combined with the 5th, the brigade wore both the red circle and the multicolored cross of the 5th.

It would be well for automobile drivers to go slowly on all down town streets, and especially at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. The veterans are busy, but the majority of them walk slowly, many cannot see well and many others cannot hear well. Several times Monday veterans narrowly escaped injury through the haste of auto drivers.

You will note that many of the veterans attending the G. A. R. encampment proudly wear a little red badge of felt in their hats. They are members of the Iron Brigade.

It seems that when the brigade was sent to go into action, the commander of the first division of the first corps of the Army of the Potomac was fretting because he could not distinguish the men of his command. He called in an orderly and ordered red blankets cut up in small strips and ordered each member of the Iron Brigade to wear one of the red pieces.

It may be an aiming mark, but at least any man hit there will not be taken prisoner," the veterans report their commander as stating. Thereafter the little red strips of felt became the proud insignia of the unit. Other units soon followed in adopting the hat insignia plan.

In the World war, no division insignia was allowed for the uniform during the period of action, but when peace came, each division adopted a shoulder ornament.

Janesville has undergone many changes since Mrs. Ella Deiderick, Waukesha, lived here 35 years ago. Mrs. Deiderick, a delegate of Waukesha tent, National Alliance Daughters of Veterans, was searching for old friends Monday. She was surprised to learn that many of them had passed on in the interval that she has been away from the city. Among others who she had met were the late H. F. Blise, publisher of the Gazette, who was her Sunday school teacher at the Court Street Methodist church.

Commander Henry C. Eaton of the Fond du Lac post let out a shout of "My gosh it's my birthday!" when someone happened to mention to him that Monday was June 16.

DRUM CORPS ADDS ZEST TO GATHERING

Martial strains of familiar air that inspired the march of the quickened the step of the civil war veterans as they marched in '61, were splendidly given on Janesville streets Monday for the entertainment of the boys of 40 years ago by the Wisconsin Veterans' Drum Corps of Milwaukee, one of the most celebrated organizations in the nation. Six of its membership were brought here for the encampment led by Capt. M. E. Bierbach. They have the distinction of having played at every national G. A. R. encampment for the past 24 years, being supported by its association in Milwaukee. The association finances only its trips to national encampments.

The life and drum corps is composed of 13 active men and flagbearers, who are veterans of the three wars—civil, Spanish-American and world war. An especial honor was in 1920, when they were sent to Dayton, O., by the republican national committee to serenade Warren G. Harding following his nomination for president.

Their big bass drum tells the story of their appearances at the national encampments in 24 years, during which they have traveled 32,580 miles. The first was at Chicago in 1900, and others following in their order: Cleveland, 1901; Washington, 1902; Boston, 1903; Denver, 1905; Minneapolis, 1906; Saratoga, 1907; Toledo, 1908; Salt Lake City, 1909; Atlantic City, 1910; Rochester, 1911; Los Angeles, 1912; Chattanooga, 1913; Detroit, 1914; 50th anniversary grand review at Washington, 1915; Kansas City, 1916; Boston, 1917; Portland, 1918; Columbus, 1919; Indianapolis, 1920-21; Des Moines, 1922; Milwaukee, 1923. This year the corps goes to Boston.

The corps has found a ready welcome in Janesville and their concerts up and down Milwaukee and Main streets have been largely applauded by the crowds that were quickly attracted.

Londoner Visits Old School Mate

Seldom are school friendships as lasting as that between Thomas Swift, London, England, and James Plumb, Janesville, Wis. Swift recently arrived from his home across the Atlantic to "spend a fortnight" with his classmate, Mr. Plumb, who came here many years ago.

Mr. Plumb is filled with words of praise for America, which he thinks is developed in some lines far in advance of his own country. He is particularly pleased with agricultural methods here, and with the highway system which he characterizes as far superior to that in his own country.

He, in company with Mr. Plumb, are making short excursions in this section and intend to visit Lake Geneva among other places this week. Mr. Swift expects to leave next Monday.

START INSPECTION OF ALL APIARIES

The authorized apiahy inspectors started this week on the county-wide foul brood eradication in Rock county, as made possible by a county board appropriation and an equal amount advanced by the state. Every colony of bees in Rock county will be inspected, and where the hives are infected the owners will be given 10 days to eradicate the disease and infected hives. As the result, Rock county should be free from foul brood following the series of inspection.

Beekeepers of southern Wisconsin are interested in the field meet to be held in the apiahy of the G. B. Lewis Co., Watertown, Saturday, June 21. Funds for indemnity by practical beekeepers will be available. It is declared, after July 1. However, only a limited amount of testing will be possible and the only sure way of obtaining the test and indemnity is through the area or county-wide program favored in Rock county.

CHICAGO MAY BAN UNTESTED MILK

It is predicted that the time is not far distant when Chicago dairy distributors will require that their supply of milk be from herds tested for bovine tuberculosis.

Dr. Arthur Killians, Wisconsin live stock commissioner, and others engaged in tuberculosis eradication work will meet this week with representatives of the Chicago dairy companies, many of whom operate receiving plants in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois, to consider enforcing a quarantine against districts not testing. Since many Illinois counties are undergoing the area or county-wide test and southern Wisconsin counties are so advanced in accredited herd work, such a regulation could be enforced without radically reducing the supply of milk in the immediate Chicago dairy belt.

It was announced Monday that Rock county was assured of sufficient milkers to be the first southern Wisconsin county to complete the petition for the area or county-wide test. The petition will be filed in the near future with the Wisconsin Live Stock Sanitary board, and the Farm Bureau will continue to circulate other petitions, to leave no doubt of the necessary percentage.

"I do not say that Chicago will at once ban all untested milk, but such a regulation is coming, and the distributors are interested," stated Dr. Killians. "Illinois is now testing cattle faster than is Wisconsin, due to the lack of funds in Wisconsin for paying claims on all except accredited districts and area work. Waukesha, Jefferson and Walworth counties are now working on the area test petitions." Funds for indemnity by practical beekeepers will be available. It is declared, after July 1. However, only a limited amount of testing will be possible and the only sure way of obtaining the test and indemnity is through the area or county-wide program favored in Rock county.

WAUTOMA MAN MAKES FIRST VISIT HERE IN HALF CENTURY

T. J. Farwell of Wautoma, Wis., who has not been in Janesville since he left here in 1872, is among the encampment visitors. He was a member of the Third Wisconsin cavalry. Mr. Farwell came here in March, 1854 and at the outbreak of the war joined company E, under the command of Capt. Pratt, which was mustered in here, and the company was sheltered in a public house on South Main street until the evacuation of the old fair grounds, a mile south of the city, on South Main street, by another company. With tents and camping paraphernalia, his regiment was moved into the camp during the winter, and after a training period left for the south on March 26, 1862. The troop took with several hundred men on board, was wrecked three miles this side of Chicago, and six were killed and 26 injured. Mr. Farwell was in the service three years and a half, most of his time being spent in the west—Missouri, Kansas and the Indian territory.

TRAXLER OFFERS TO MEET DEALERS

Wants to Get to Bottom of Proposition, He Says in Letter.

Any move on the part of a dealer in gasoline at a price that will not be a fair, legitimate profit, and no more, has the hearty endorsement of City Manager Henry Traxler and he is willing to meet with all the gasoline dealers at any time "to go to the bottom of this proposition."

The city manager has so stated himself in a letter addressed to J. A. Strimpe in response to Mr. Strimpe's recent proposal to sell at 25 per cent gross profit if every dealer in the city.

The letter is another step in the controversy which had its inception in the manager's recent suggestion that the city might go into the gasoline business if prices were considered too high. Mr. Traxler says he does not intend to go haphazardly into any proposition so important and promises to give it the most careful consideration.

No Council Action Yet

Following is the city manager's letter to Mr. Strimpe:

"In your letter of June 14, you allow me to state that I cannot, at this time, speak for the council of the city of Janesville.

"However, I can say that any move on your part, or any other dealer in gasoline, to sell that commodity at a price that will not be a fair legitimate profit and no more, has my unqualified endorsement.

Trend for Regulation

"The trend all over the country is for regulation of the price of gasoline at a price below cost, but due, I would say, to realization that gasoline has become a universal product and a necessity, the price of which the public is vitally interested in. It then becomes a matter of issue between the public and the dealer, and as far as I can see, unless the dealer meets that issue by quoting the public a fair price, the public will be forced into the business. One state, I believe, is now engaged in the sale of gasoline to the public and local cities have gone into the business.

"I would not be willing, at this time, to state what I would consider a fair gross per cent of profit as I am not acquainted with all the over head costs entailed in the sale of gasoline. Some scale along the lines you suggest in your letter, may be equitable and fair.

Protect People's Interests

"Assuring you that I heartily endorse any movement whereby equitable adjustments can be made on issues of this kind with the further assurance that as city manager of Janesville, it is not my policy to go haphazardly into a proposition as important as this, and am willing to meet with you and all dealers in the city to go to the bottom of this proposition. You and your fellow dealers must realize that I would be neglecting my duty and the trust imposed in me should I fail to protect the interests of the people of Janesville whenever the opportunity arises."

National Head of Women's Relief Here for Address

Mrs. Bell W. Bliss, Daraboo, national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, is an ex-officio delegate and will speak at the public institute in the high school auditorium Tuesday night. Mrs. Bliss was elected national president at the encampment held in Milwaukee last fall. She has been a member of the Relief Corps since 1888, and was state department president in 1899-1900.

The Woman's Relief Corps has a national membership of close to 250,000, which gives it distinction of being the largest patriotic organization of women in the world.

The city manager has so stated himself in a letter addressed to J. A. Strimpe in response to Mr. Strimpe's recent proposal to sell at 25 per cent gross profit if every dealer in the city.

AUXILIARIES IN TUESDAY SESSIONS

Daughters' Societies Transact Business With Large Attendance.

(By PEG O'BRIEN WEISSE.)
Reports, resolutions and various other details of business were considered by women's auxiliaries at the first sessions Tuesday morning and afternoon, with the National Alliance, Daughters of Veterans and Daughters of the G. A. R. planning to elect officers late Tuesday afternoon.

Daughters of the G. A. R. met at East Side Odd Fellows hall with Mrs. J. H. Kiser, Milwaukee, department commander, presiding. There was a large and representative attendance, with the national president, Mrs. Mary Barker, Chicago, presiding at the meeting. Business was resumed at 1:30 and general lodge work transacted.

The Daughters will attend in a body, Tuesday night, the Women's Relief Corps reception at the high school auditorium.

Luncheon Wednesday.
Participation in the events of this order is the luncheon, which is to be served at the Baptist church at noon Wednesday, immediately following the parade. National and department officers will be guests of honor, with the Mary Norcross fortress, this city, making arrangements for the affair. At 2 p. m. following the luncheon, an open meeting is to be held, to which the public is invited and G. A. R. members urged to attend. Mrs. Mary Barker, the national president, will speak. A master card and a memorial service will be features of this meeting.

Beautiful ritualistic work and imposing memorial services were given Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church by the Wisconsin department of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

Twelve women of various circles composed the picked team which put on the work. This is the team which was distinguished at the national encampment in Milwaukee last September, attracting much favorable comment for its splendid training. The Milwaukee circle, with Mrs. M. Trench as leader, conducted the memorial service. At the opening of the meeting, greetings were extended by the various circles. Chaplain Carl of the Wisconsin Veterans home, near Waupaca, gave a short talk.

The council of administration, the advisory council and the credential committee held impromptu meetings at the headquarters in the Grand hotel, Tuesday morning.

Announce Result of Balloting at West Side Hall

Balloting of officers for the division and the banquet in honor of the national president, Mrs. Drusilla Thayer, Chicago, and the division president, Mrs. Edna L. Blume, Waupaca, featured the Tuesday session of the National Alliance, Daughters of Veterans.

Results of the election will be given out at 5 p. m. at West Side Odd Fellows hall, following the business meeting, Tuesday afternoon.

The session opened Tuesday by Eugene Fish, this city, who gave the drum salute. Mr. Fish told of his three attempts to enter the war and his rejection each time because of his age, he being only 12 when he first tried. Colonel Grove was offered a bounty of $400 and the federal government a bounty of $102 in gold to those who would enlist. Mr. Fish tried again and was told if he would give his age as 18, his parents would receive the money and he could go to war. The drummer-boy did not want to do this for he knew his classmates in school will be in line for telling a lie. At one of the soldiers signed the required state, at for him and he enlisted at Waupaca, serving as a drummer at Gettysburg.

Another distinguished visitor at the morning session was Lew Wallace McComb, Stoughton, past division commander of the Sons of Veterans and himself a Red Arrow man of the 125th Infantry in the World War.

One hundred are expected to attend the banquet at 6:30 at the Myers hotel after which exemplification of ritualistic work will be put on in West Side hall. This work and the reception will be open to the public. The drill team of the Milwaukee tent will put on a military drill in honor of the national president, Mrs. Drusilla Thayer.

SONS, AUXILIARY MEET IN ELKS HALL

With more than 600 in attendance, the 11th encampment of the Wisconsin Sons of Veterans, in its annual session, was remarkably successful, for the meeting in the Elks club room Monday night was an event.

The Sons of Veterans have established headquarters in the Elks lodge room and the auxiliary in the Elks club room.

Due to the death of his daughter, H. C. Meek, Shelbyville, commander of the Wisconsin Sons of Veterans, is unable to attend the session. He is expected to leave for his home on Monday night of Herman Baker, Allen's Grove; Willard Ballinger, Sharon; and Frank Player, Janesville.

The three men were in the house at the time the police staged the raid and it is alleged one of them threw bottles of gin and whiskey down the cellar stairs as the officers entered. The contents were drained into a pan, about one-third of a pint being obtained, police claim.

Tuesday morning a search-warrant was obtained for Ballinger's car and two quarts of alleged gin were found in it. Ballinger's car had only one license tag on it and that had been issued to Clinton G. Wiley, Sharon, a veteran walking stick and gave him a ride to his destination. Veterans will find many cars carrying the claim: "At Your Service, G. A. R."

Have Ritual Work
Both the Sons of Veterans and auxiliary met Monday night for an extensive program. The officers of the auxiliary, Ida S. Lewis, Milwaukee, president; Nettie A. Hayes, Milwaukee, division secretary; and Catherine Jensen, chief of staff, Racine, were present.

Early in the evening there was exemplification of ritual work, which was superb, by the officers and staff of the Milwaukee auxiliary No. 4, the largest unit in the state. Janesville women eligible for membership in the auxiliary included Mrs. Lou King, Helen K. Smith, Mary J. Van Matre, Mrs. Edw. Reeder, Mrs. K. M. Palmer, Mrs. K. West and Mrs. Grace Hudson were initiated. Past commanders of the auxiliary participated in the campfire program at the high school, giving the auxiliary's greetings.

Mrs. Nettie Hayes, Milwaukee, was presiding officer during the ritual work.

Twenty from Janesville were obligated during the program. The Sons of Veterans branch for Janesville.

During the program, the Milwaukee auxiliary presented the Stoughton unit with the altar cloth and American flags.

The feature of the entertainment was the crack drill team of the Milwaukee auxiliary, organized by Mrs. George White. Attired in the most white uniforms, red caps and blue military hats, this team won unstinted applause in their skill marching and work and maneuvering. The team rivalled any lodge team ever seen in this city.

Those in the drill were: Mesdames White, Ida Lewis, Edna Hayes, Alice Garland, Emma McAllister, Aknes Wheeler, Grace Horle, Estelle Walker, H. White, Nettie McGee, Mabel Dickerson, P. Kramer, M. Jones and Misses L. Wachten, Edna Menz and Thillie Benz.

Following the drill, there was a social and dance, with Hatch's orchestra.

Meetings were held Tuesday by both organizations and there will be another social and dance at the Elks club room Tuesday night. Business meetings were held in the headquarters rooms during the morning.

Commander Will Address Legion

A special meeting of commanders, adjutants and other officers of southern Wisconsin American Legion posts will be held at the high school at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday. The meeting was called Tuesday by Vilas Whaley, Racine, state commander, who will be here to speak at the G. A. R. camp fire Wednesday night.

Matters pertaining to the state convention of the Legion are expected to be placed before the World war veterans by their leader. The men will dine at the high school cafeteria, arrangements having been made by John W. Gross, Jr., commander of the Janesville post.

Officers are expected to be present from Janesville, Edgerton, Evansville, Whitewater, Brooklyn, Beloit, Portville, Elkhorn, Milton and Oconomowoc.

W. R. C. CONTEST TO BE HARD FOUGHT

That the contest for department president of the W. R. C. is to be a close one, fought out along strategic lines, was indicated Tuesday forenoon, when a motion to change the order of business and set the election at 1:30 that afternoon was carried by a close margin. The election was originally set for Wednesday morning.

Janesville has two candidates for the office—Mrs. Corn Dickinson and Mrs. Sarah Carman. It was thought other nominees might be brought forward.

The Tuesday morning session started with an informal reception to the G. A. R. Presentation of state officers, past presidents, aides and other leaders preceded the president's address by Mrs. Sylvia G. Mark. The forenoon session closed with a memorial service in honor of 227 members who have died during the year. The department chairman, Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Amherst, conducted the service. Miss Gladys Miller sang "In the City Four-Square" and "Abide with Me." Mrs. P. T. Richards was at the organ.

Twelve past presidents had luncheon together at noon and held a business meeting afterward. Mrs. Cora Evans, Waupaca, president of the association, presided. Mrs. Belle W. Bliss, Barnboro, national president, was a guest of honor. Mrs. Bliss served as department president in 1923-1924. Those present in the order of their service as president, were: Mrs. Elizabeth Sneed, Menomonee; Mrs. Julietta Morris, Beloit; Mrs. Harriet L. Welton, Madison; Mrs. Cora M. Evans, Waupaca; Mrs. Agnes Gordon, Milwaukee; Mrs. Mary L. Bailey, Milwaukee; Mrs. Dora M. Allen, Oshkosh; Mrs. May Lush, singer, Monroe; Miss Cora E. Harris, Evansville; Mrs. Geraldine Fenlon, Waunakee and Mrs. Sylvia Mark, Vi-ragus.

About 300 delegates were at the Tuesday morning session.

DRIVERS TO GIVE VETERANS "LIFTS"

A general request for all drivers of automobiles to give "lifts" to the Civil war veterans was issued Tuesday. "If you have a car and see a veteran walking stick and give him a ride to his destination. Veterans will find many cars carrying the claim: "At Your Service, G. A. R."

RAID PUTS STOP TO KITTEN BALL GAMES

Kitten ball games for Tuesday night were postponed Tuesday afternoon, because of the rain. The regular schedule will be resumed next Tuesday, the postponed games being played at the conclusion of the regular schedule.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY HONORS ITS DEAD

First Memorial Service Held by Daughters of Veterans
Is Impressive.

By PEG O'BRIEN WELSH.

After fires for all time were begun and the license of faith in the ideals of their fathers pledged anew when the National Alliance Daughters of Veterans department held the first memorial services Monday afternoon in West Side Odd Fellows' hall. Never before was a convention in Janesville opened under more auspicious circumstances, for the daughters of veterans in its infancy in Wisconsin, the Monday afternoon service being the first memorial of the less than a year old organization.

As the department officers took their seats, Mrs. Edna L. Blume, Waukesha, in the department president's chair, the audience, composed of 75 delegates, and a group of comrades of William Cushing post No. 1, A. R., Waukesha, sang "America."

Depart Heads to Chime.

"It gives me great pride to open this, the first memorial service of the daughters of veterans," said Mrs. Blume. "It seems fitting that our first public appearance should be in memory of our departed fathers. We have the honor of having the first memorial service of the less than a year old organization. As the department officers took their seats, Mrs. Edna L. Blume, Waukesha, in the department president's chair, the audience, composed of 75 delegates, and a group of comrades of William Cushing post No. 1, A. R., Waukesha, sang "America."

Local women furnished the musical end of the program. Mrs. S. P. Richards sang, "Going Home," with Mrs. Fred Hoyer playing the piano accompaniment. Mrs. Roy Parker sang, "I'm a Pilgrim, I'm a Stranger," with Miss Ruth Bennett playing the accompaniment. Miss Jessie Viner contributed two violin solos, "Cello and Air G. String," J. S. Bach, and "The Rosary." These numbers were much appreciated and were in direct keeping with the general solemnity of the entire program.

Following the address of welcome Mrs. Blume instructed Mrs. Harriet Clough, Waupun, department chaplain, to take charge of the memorial service. An altar of white illuminated with white candles in silver holders, the deceased members were paid special honor. Mrs. Gertrude Looney, Waukesha, placed on the altar the altar flowers. The names of the late Mrs. Mary Welch, Waukesha, and Mrs. Jennie L. Johnson, Oshkosh, placed roses on the altar in memory of the late Mrs. Nicholas, Oshkosh, tent. In tribute to the deceased comrades of the G. A. R., Mrs. Isabel Bergstrom, Milwaukee, laid pink sweet peas upon the altar. Mrs. Pearl Hanson, Oshkosh, tent, paid honor to the deceased Sons of Veterans with a floral offering. For the allied organizations, Mrs. Ruth Freckling, Milwaukee, laid a corsage of pink sweet peas upon the altar.

Service Is Impressive.

Most impressive of all the services was the reading of lavender sweet peas by Mrs. Mary J. White, Milwaukee, chairman of the council. Mrs. White laid a flower as each name of a father or grandfather of the members of the daughters of veterans was read. Sixty-four names were read and as the department president called the names many a tear was shed at the remembrance of a loved one gone. Mrs. Blume's voice faltered as she read the name of her own father, George Billings, who, under three administrations, was revenue collector in Milwaukee.

Commander, Eaton Speaks.

The service closed with the audience singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

"Your ceremony, though sweet and sad, was most commendable," said Commander Eaton. "You have placed upon this altar the names of our fathers and grandfathers, and in memory of our dear departed comrades, they have given their lives for you. They have sealed and solidified this great country that it will never again be torn apart. Our boys in the north and our boys in the south are now one. You have the proud honor of living in one of the greatest, if not the greatest, country in this earth. Today it is more noble to be an American than to be a king."

"I was pleased this morning as we marched down the streets of Janesville to see the young men raise their hats in respect to the flag. When you follow the fortunes of this flag as I have you must know how I feel it."

"This has been a beautiful ceremony, in fact, one of the most beautiful memorial services which I have ever witnessed. I am glad to see our daughters so efficient and pledge to you now what ever support I can give in the future toward bettering your glorious work."

"We are honored today," stated Mrs. Thayer, "in having with us the G. A. R. men from Waukesha and so many members at the opening of the first convention of the Wisconsin department. There services are always the saddest part of our conventions. It is our duty to honor the dead. This ceremony is the most beautiful and most impressive which I have ever witnessed. I will tell your sister departments all over the United States what splendid work our baby department is doing."

MAN'S BODY FOUND; MYSTERY CLEARED

Port Washington, Pa.—Finding of the body of Fred Lindner, Milwaukee, late yesterday in twenty feet of water, about 200 feet from the place where the body of his companion, Miss Mabel Hanson, Bluff, Wis., school teacher, was found in Milwaukee Saturday, cleared up a mystery which has baffled authorities of Sheboygan county since Saturday.

That Lindner came to his death from heart disease, aggravated by excitement in attempting to save his companion from drowning, is the belief of coroner George Horn, here. It is believed the couple attempted to exchange seats in the boat in which they were riding and the girl lost her balance.

The Waterway to the Gulf of St. Lawrence

The republican platform contains a plank in advocacy of the waterway to the seaboard by the St. Lawrence river. In the platform read before the convention at Cleveland, the La Follette exordium also has a plank favoring such a waterway. It is quite likely that, unless dominated entirely by New York and Boston interests, the democratic platform will contain such a plank. Therefore the waterway will not be a political issue but a fully accepted proposal and with the backing of all parties and parts of parties, will have a chance to get through congress.

Senator Lenroot, who has been a long and consistent advocate of the waterway, was complimented by the insurgent platform in accepting his position on the Lakes to the Seaboard commercial highway for vessels. Just recently the governor of South Carolina has declared himself in favor of the St. Lawrence route. He says that such a transportation of products direct by sea-going vessels is a good thing for his state as well as the nation. That is a broad and generous view to take by an eastern seaboard state. It might be followed by both New York and other Atlantic cities which have been prophesying much shipping going to some other ports and being lost to their wharves.

The Panama canal has shown the way to inter-coastal traffic and the immense gain in tonnage there has brought the Atlantic and the Pacific much closer together than ever before. What a line of vessels from the lakes would do for the western states, the grain growing states and the industries of the central west is not hard to estimate. It is better than sporadic efforts to pass laws for a moment only and to meet some constantly arising emergency.

Apparently there is some objection to the inclusion of Pepper in the world court.

Seventy-Nine Years of Newspaper Life

The edition of the Janesville Daily Gazette published Monday was made possible because the Gazette has been in existence all these years with the same name and the same high ideals.

The files of the Gazette are an invaluable collection of historical facts—as history is made from day to day and as much a revelation of the daily life of the community in which it is published as Popsy's Diary was to the English life of his day.

The Gazette was established in 1845 and has never missed a publication date for almost 79 years except for two weeks in 1846 when white paper failed to arrive in time from the east. That is a long life—about the average age of the soldiers of the Civil War who are in Janesville. Its files tell the story of development, of hopes and ambitions of the community, some of them realized, many of them not coined into achievement. What made it possible to do a different thing than has ever before been accomplished by a newspaper was the news-gathering determination of the publishers and editors of the Gazette during the Civil war. The Gazette loved the union and hated slavery. It was ahead of its time. The general public opinion was that slavery was not the great issue in the war but that the first thing to do was to save the union and take up slavery later. Public opinion changed and came around to the Gazette's position that slavery was at the bottom of disunion and therefore should be abolished. So when the Emancipation Proclamation came the Gazette was very happy. There were copperheads in those days and the political battles were heated and personal. Divisions came in families and in communities. Lines of cleavage were sharp and well-defined. One had to be for the union or against it. No middle ground was accepted. Neutrality was unknown. It was war for the union or else the opponent was for the rebellious states.

Happily that has all passed. One may think we are wandering away from ideals now but the fact is we have a better understanding of one another today than ever in the history of the country. It can be proved by reading the files of the Gazette. The story of the war from those files is a contribution to the war history and reminiscence, an instigation to reading and story. The Gazette is very happy in being able to present such a story to the Grand Army of the republic and knows it will be equally interesting to all who had relatives or a personal interest in the city and state at that period.

Some of the opposition to Japanese exclusion may come from those who think it some swank to have a Jap valet.

One newspaper says that Gov. Lowden was not the first man to refuse a vice presidential nomination after being selected. Silas Wright, of New York, got 234 out of 256 in the convention of 1844 and refused. Most of us had forgotten all about it.

This year shows more children in school than ever before. There are fewer children working to support drunken fathers.

WHITE HOUSE GARDEN PARTIES

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—White House garden parties are becoming as much of a national institution as White House receptions. In recent administrations, presidents' wives have adopted the custom of holding three or four large garden parties during May. These are more informal than the state receptions of the winter season, which are given for the diplomats, the army and navy set, the judiciary and congress. No set of officials is especially received at the outdoor affairs, but the guest lists are about as formidable in size as those for the winter functions.

To include all the necessary high government officials and foreign representatives and their ladies, and the capital's debutantes and other society folk, it is necessary to make up a different guest list of some 2,000 names for each affair. The garden parties have thus taken on an air of being official entertainments, even though they are given by the president's wife, and are not conducted with state formality. They may yet become established tradition, as are the four state receptions and the state dinners given each season to the cabinet and the diplomats, the supreme court, and the speaker of the house.

From the beginning of the republic's history, it has been felt that the president and his wife must hold certain more or less formal functions, unless illness or some other serious emergency prevented. Mrs. Adams, fretted by the shortage of lamps and her broken china, and driven to hanging a clothes line in the great, barren east room of the executive mansion, still was aware that social obligations must be met. She wrote that the ladies of the city were impatient for a drawing room, and as soon as possible she gave the first state reception at the White House in the second floor east parlor which is now the private parlor of the mansion.

From that time on, the White House receptions have been an institution. For years, while the capital's population grew slowly, the public was admitted to the levees generally held on inauguration day, Fourth of July, and New Year's day. At times, as at one of the Johnson receptions, the crowd that came to greet the president was so great that women fainted and had to be carried out through the windows. The shoulder straps of a woman's evening gown were torn completely off in one of these so-called White House crushes, and she had to explain to the president that she could not shake hands because her dress must be held in place.

As the city's population increased it became necessary to limit the persons received to a reasonable number of invited guests. Mr. McKinley was considered a brave and unconventional extrovert to insist upon this policy.

There are stories of the receptions of almost every administration. But mention is made of outdoor affairs, aside from Dolly Madison's liking for outdoor hospitality.

It is true there is little entertaining done during the warmer seasons by official Washington. And during the earlier administrations the grounds of the president's estate were probably grounds were unimproved, the heavily wooded "lawn." In 1818, congress appropriated $10,000 for grading and improving the president's square. One gardener was appointed at $150 a year to take care of the place.

This financial provision was not sufficient to perfect the grounds. Much later, the green west of the executive mansion was known as the cow pasture, and the vegetable garden which supplied the White House kitchens was too near the mansion for beauty. But the White House surroundings have been set off by smooth lawns and skillful gardening.

In 1841, the lawn, which had been a cow pasture, was fit to be styled the president's garden, and here President Tyler sponsored the first White House band concert. One writer says:

"When a storm threatened, President Tyler came to the door, and invited the people to take shelter in the house, hanging in the little children and ladies and asking the gentlemen, 'The sovereign people seemed to put themselves in absolute possession of the sovereign's habitation. Some of the ladies took off their bonnets and were encircled with their bosoms in the window seats.'"

The weekly White House concerts have continued in summer months up to the present day, though in recent years the president does not mingle with the people.

President Hayes' wife introduced the policy of letting the children of the city use the broad lawn to the south of the White House, for an egg-rolling party on Easter Monday, and with few exceptions the White House grounds have been open to the children on that holiday ever since.

But use of the White House grounds for extensive social entertainment might be called a twentieth century development. By Mrs. Roosevelt's time the grounds were recognized as a perfect background for garden parties. The lawns and hedges were in good condition. The fountain was surrounded by flowers. The Marine Band in full dress was playing and gaily colored refreshment tents were dotted over the lawn, the festive atmosphere was complete.

Mrs. Taft said that she took a special interest in this form of hospitality. Some time ago she described her experiences with the spring garden party and particularly with the uncertain garden party weather. The lawn was attractively arranged for her May party, she says, when "about half past three it began to rain in torrents and I saw all of my festive-looking preparations reduced to sopping wrecks before there was even time to rush them indoors. By five o'clock it had stopped raining, but the lawns were soaked and the trees were dripping miserably." There was nothing for the hostess to do but receive her guests in the East room and make the parlors as springlike as possible with flowers.

This spring, Mrs. Coolidge has been handicapped by a month of weather entirely unsuitable for outdoor entertaining. Rainfall, which was almost continuous, stopped for the first garden party, and Mrs. Coolidge and the president decided to receive on the damp lawn since holding the garden parties indoors is always a disappointment to the guests.

But the day was damp and threatening, and Mr. Coolidge, burdened, caught cold from standing on a rug on the grass, while he shook hands with 2,000 people. The next two parties fell on days so rainy or damp underfoot that indoor entertainment was unavoidable.

A garden party in the state apartments has its points of interest, which distinguish it from the winter receptions. From the receiving line in through the parlors and corridors and the state dining room where refreshments are served.

The French doors to the East Room and the state dining room are open, and when the rain terraces which open from them. These terraces are popular with occupants of the White House, though they are not so private as the south veranda.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

"It is hyper-acidity," said Dr. Phlegm. "Something you're eating is changing to acid—A chemical trouble that's easily cured. I'll give you a diet, the rest is assured; Just cut out your coffee, your pork chops and your beer."

For these are the foods which are causing your grief.

"The juice of an orange is poison to you. And grapes and a menace—these things are taboo!"

"How about strawberries, Doctor?" said I. "Never a strawberry!" came his reply: "You may have prunes, if they're thoroughly ripe."

But never a bite of your favorite food."

"Mark what I tell you and make no mistake, hyper-acidity lurks in all cake!"

When they are served you must put them aside; If at the root of this trouble you'd strike, Eat what I tell you and not what you like.

"This is your diet; eat all that you wish. Providing it's chicken, providing it's fish; Nothing to drink at your meals, save it be A cup of warm water just flavored with tea."

Can't you be happy?" said I. "Holy smoke! Can't you be doing almost merrily joke?"

HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1924.

This is rather an uncertain day, according to astrology. While Jupiter and Uranus are in hostile aspect, Venus and Mars are adverse.

It should be most fortunate for all who desire to push mercantile or manufacturing interests.

Political candidates should benefit from the planetary influences which tend to focus interest on leaders and to assure good impressions.

Astrologers read this as a threatening warning day, since quibbles and even divorce appear to be foreshadowed.

Theatrical managers may look forward to many disagreements which will cause losses and severe business changes.

Talk of war preparation of any sort should be suppressed if the stars are read aright, for future conflicts will be overwhelmingly disastrous to civilization.

And the stars prophesy race antagonisms and new power for negro companies at this time.

Social matters will come much to the front until the very end of this month, for wealth will be used lavishly in the entertainment of distinguished men and women.

Extraordinary favor will be gained for all outdoors sports, pageants and theatrical performances during the next few weeks it is prophesied.

There is a promise of large profits for ocean liners, railways and motor companies at this time.

Caterers and all purveyors of food are to prosper this summer when there will be much dining and luncheon for the purpose of devouring reputations as well as chicken à la king.

Persons whose birthdate is 11 have the augury of change which may not be satisfactory. This year should be fairly prosperous.

Children born on this day may be inclined to be careless and untidy. These subjects of Gemini are on the cusp and usually have "canoe" characteristics. They generally have good luck all through life.

When discouraged, You should know, Every chide, Thus it flows.

Punny world: Short winded, you're a nuisance to yourself; long winded, you're a nuisance to everybody.

New babies and new potatoes must have an abundance of good water, fresh air, sunshine and freedom from insects.

We haven't much patience with the fellow who gets excited about a case of smallpox, when a collar or two would buy him absolute protection.

HISTORY OF TODAY

TODAY'S EVENTS.

One week from today will see the opening of the democratic national convention.

And one year from today the United States will celebrate the 150th anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill.

The Independent Order of Foresters, with 167,000 members in the United States and Canada, celebrated its 100th birthday at Milan, N. J.

Bobby Jones, former United States national golf champion, married Miss Mary MacLennan today at the home of the bride's parents in Atlanta.

TODAY'S ANNIVERSARIES.

1776—Battle of Bunker Hill, the last notable engagement of the American Revolution.

1823—Father S. Dixon, for many years chief justice of Wisconsin, died at Madison, N. J.

1860—Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president by the republican national convention in Chicago.

1874—A jubilee congress of societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals met in London.

1892—Ten thousand delegates attended the Ulster conference in opposition to home rule at Belfast.

1917—General Pershing given ovation by great society and army at Camp Clamart in Paris.

1921—United States senate passed bill for control of meat packing industry.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY.

Thirty thousand people fled from their homes before a great flow of lava down the northern slope of Mt. Iza.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, wife of the former secretary of state, born at Perry, Ill., 63 years ago today.

Mag. Gen. Omar Bundy, U. S. A., the man who led "Americans cannot retreat," born at Newcasle, Ind., 63 years ago today.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO.

June 17, 1884.—Five appeared before the board of examiners yesterday as candidates for admission to Annapolis naval academy. Those from this city who qualified in the physical examination were John Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Davies, and John L. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Richardson.

THIRTY YEARS AGO.

June 17, 1894.—Following a hot argument, which has continued for several weeks, it was decided last night that no high school will be issued. "There is not a single case of contagious disease in town now, according to Health Officer Robinson. There has been considerable scarlet fever."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

June 17, 1904.—Capt. Philip Norcross, who was elected department commander of the Wisconsin G. A. R., at its Madison convention this week, was met at the train by the local post, friends and the Imperial band last night, and escorted to the Court house park, where congratulatory speeches were made.

TEN YEARS AGO.

June 17, 1914.—Joe Johnson, Atten, representing the town of Reed, won first place in the spelling contest held here in connection with the rural schools graduation. Vera Dodge, Avalon, and Margaret Kennebec, La Prairie, tied for second. A request for $5,500 for an addition to the Douglas school was considered by the council last night.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

BRADY EXERCISE IN BRONCHITIS.

In cases of chronic bronchitis (recurring winter cough) associated, as such cases so often are, with bronchiectasis (dilatation or ballooning of the bronchi) or with the production of an excessive amount of sputum (bronchophoria) or with emphysema (ballooning of portions of the lungs) it is often beneficial to add drainage and postural maneuvers, as we have already described in recent issues and to add the breathing by exercises, provided the subject's condition permits exercise. If there is any doubt about that, the physician who knows the subject's condition can decide whether exercise is advisable.

There seems to be some impairment of the expiratory function in most cases of chronic bronchitis. That is, the individual breathes out with more difficulty, the chest does not empty itself as readily as it does in a normal individual, nor as completely. That's where the wheeze comes in. Where there's a wheeze there's a difficulty in getting the air out of the lungs. It is most strikingly shown in true asthma, in the seizure of which the wheeze is wholly expiratory and there is comparatively little difficulty about taking in air (inspiratory).

One of the easiest and least laborious exercises consists in standing before the mirror and drawing slowly and steadily the lower lip up and back, as if you were pulling a string, and then you become accustomed to this several times each day. Repeat this exercise several times each day.

More laborious and perhaps more effective in emptying the chest is artificial respiration manipulation in the way which everybody should know. This is the method. For this you assume the prone position while a volunteer manipulates your breathing for five minutes night and morning. Unless you are quite stout it is best to have a friend manipulate or hard pillow under your belly.

Provided the heart function is not embarrassed—as it sometimes is in chronic bronchitis—the best body exercise is watching the body with the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth movements of the Second Brady symphony.

Or just the eleventh and thirteenth if you're in very poor physical condition. Or the bare eleventh movement, then, if you're not entirely. The eleventh movement runs as follows:

Lie supine, hands on floor. Without lifting head or shoulders from floor, slowly raise both legs up to vertical, breathing in as you do it; then slowly lower them to the floor again, breathing out. Repeat this only once at a session at first and gradually increase as you grow accustomed to the exercise. You can do it 20 times at night and morning. It was found more natural to breathe out as you raise your legs and in as you lower them, why suit yourself about that. But breathe and don't try to hold.
